Opp. page: Lines delineate all sorts of things. Orange lines mark the volleyball courts; black lines, the basketball courts; white lines, the tennis courts, etc. Lines can sometimes be confusing . . . just ask a member of the marching band.

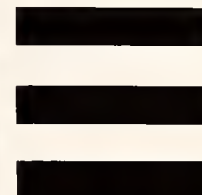

This page:

Even when lines aren't totally straight, the fun of the group is still delineated.

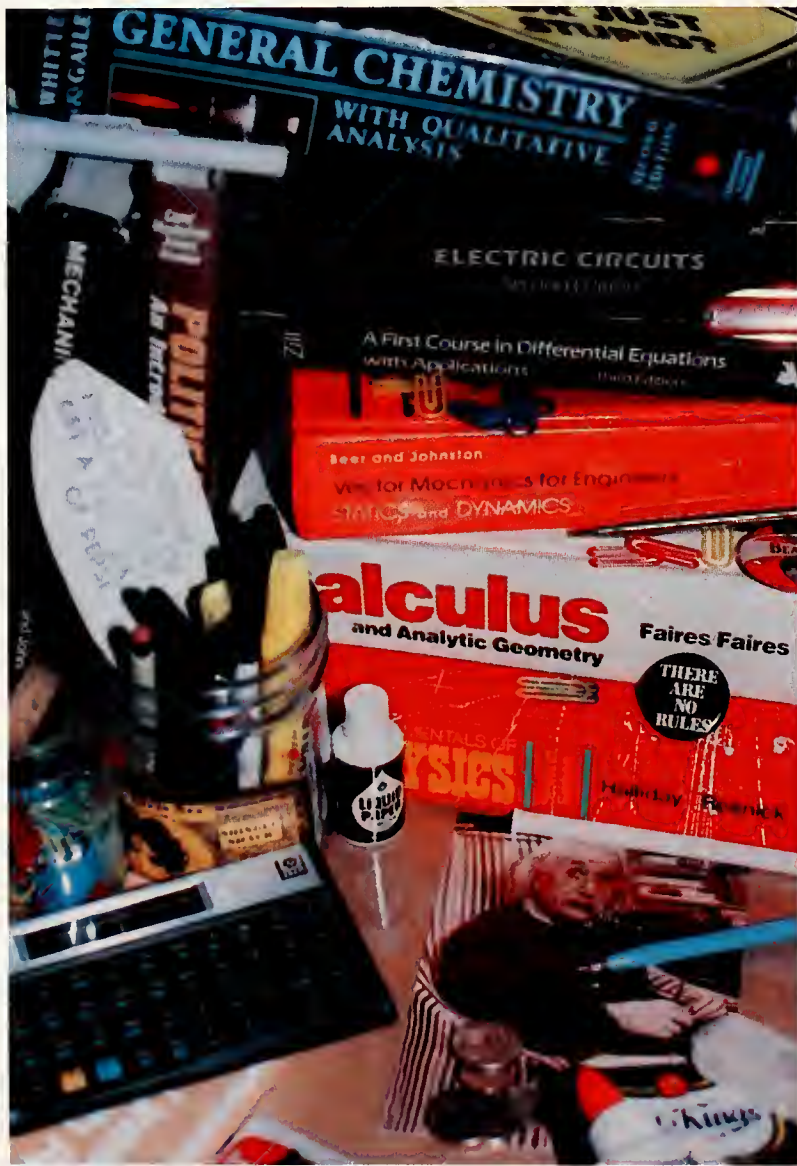

Sometimes pictures have no hidden meaning except the true and sometimes overlooked beauty which they capture.

You know what NOT to do between these lines — unless you want a parking ticket.

Opp. page: A pretty long way to travel when taking on obstacles — especially when starting from the other end. Striking a pose with our Bear is Linette Phillips. A view of a row of desks as they appear to many in that panicked time just prior to an exam. This page: Is this "lining the hall?" There was no hope for this individual . . . another finals week victim bites the dust.

Opp. page: A brand new entrance greets students as well as visitors.
A picture is worth a thousand-word essay

Students line-up to see Santa Claus.
This page: Peeking out from behind the bars of the AOPi jail are Patty Aron and Colin McKim.
These unidentifiable basketball fans went to great lengths to show their support.

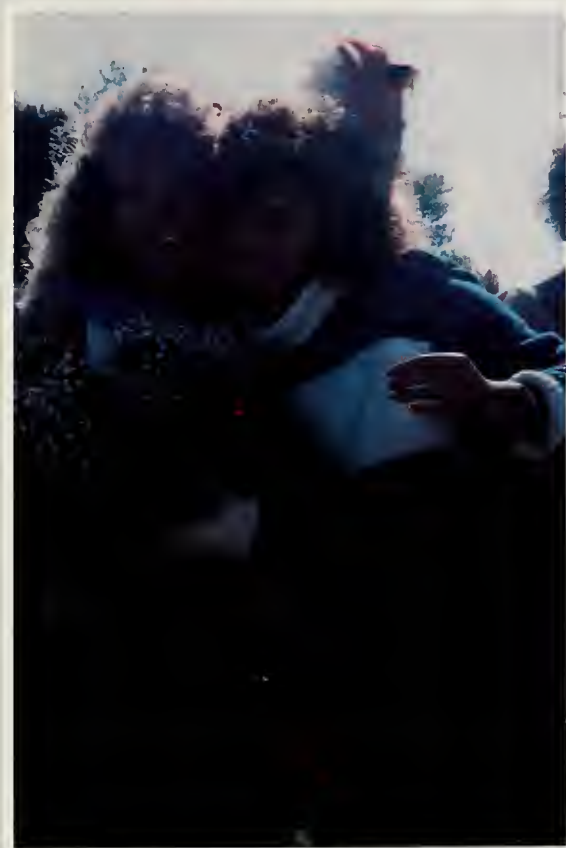

This page: The football players and a crowd of others attend the Torchlight Parade festivities. The candidates take the spotlight during the Homecoming skits. Many students wrap-up the week by enjoying the fun and sounds of the Homecoming Dance. The ROTC color guard makes a special addition to the pre-game festivities. Some alumni check the board in McIntosh to find out who's here and who's not. Opp. page: Last years queen, Judy Prince, gives newly crowned queen Shelley Evans a congratulatory hug. A crowd of fans enjoy the game. The banner starts off the biggest and best parade ONU has ever seen. The 1986 Queen and King and their court attentively watch the rest of the half-time activities.

An Entertaining Week As Many Get Their Own Ideas About WHAT DREAMS ARE MADE OF . . .

The campus was buzzing as Homecoming week and its many activities came upon us.

Many were busily making banners for Monday's "Banner Day" and Added Attraction provided entertainment during the ice cream social. "The Apathy Busters" amused an anti-apaty crowd on Tuesday, while Wednesday, it was Club Holiday's turn to provide the entertainment as they rocked many ONU students with their concert in the ballroom. Wednesday also marked the start of the voting for the king and queen.

Thursday, the Homecoming skits featured the rapping talents of all the candidates. Friday kicked off with the annual Pushmobile Races. As darkness descended, torches provided light for the Torchlight Parade and the bonfire pep rally which followed. There, the Homecoming court of Melinda Durbin (Brookhart), Shelley Evans (DZ), Erin McLaughlin (AZD), Premala Wilson (Kappa Phi), Rachel Hunter (AOPi), Bruce LeMaster (Park), Hiram Lynch (Roberts), Darren Scott (Founders), Jim Taylor (PMD) and John Weidling (Phi Kaps) was announced. Afterwards, many pulled all-nighters trying to assemble their floats for the biggest and best Homecoming parade ever.

Many alumni poured in to help fill the stadium to capacity while attending the football game ONU hosted with Mt. Union. During half-time, Shelley Evans and Hiram Lynch were announced as Queen and King. The week was capped off with the Homecoming Dance held Saturday night.

A Northern Christmas . . .

While "Ohio Northern" may not be the first words to pop into one's mind when thinking of Christmas, one can find many pleasurable sights and happenings on the campus at Christmastime. Although we're not here the whole Holiday Season to appreciate it all, a Northern Christmas can be a very enjoyable one.

This page: A sight which greets many of us and most campus visitors during the Holiday Season, Lehr Memorial.

Some members of the Student Planning Commission volunteer their time to wrap gifts. Lights decorate a giant tree in the circle in front of McIntosh.

It looks as though Charlie Brown picked out this particular Christmas tree.

Opp. page: A barrage of cards sit in a rather large heap upon someone's floor.

Decking the halls with boughs of . . . Christmas cards???

This room is void of the bah-humbugs, as is evident by the tree some residents erected.

This happy wrapper at the SPC booth is Angie Dine.

This strangely decorated tree was spotted in the education media center.

"And I want . . ." a smiling Sue Montain tells Santa Griffey at the Maglott Hall Christmas Party.

Someone is going to find a little Christmas cheer in his mailbox.

Theatre goes for the jugular, striking deep in the hearts of many with different forms of TERROR

The 1986-1987 theatre season opened with "When You Comin Back, Red Rider?" by Mark Medoff, under the direction of Fredrica Lawlor. The play was a gripping and incisive drama set in a small New Mexico diner in the 1960's. The action centered around Teddy, who terrorizes the employees and patrons. With dark, sardonic humor, Teddy discovers the vulnerabilities of everyone present in the diner and preys upon them, cruelly baring the souls of all present. Guest artist Charles Killian was brought in as fight director to choreograph the violence in the show to insure effectiveness and conviction as well as to insure the safety of the cast members. The set designer was Nils Riess.

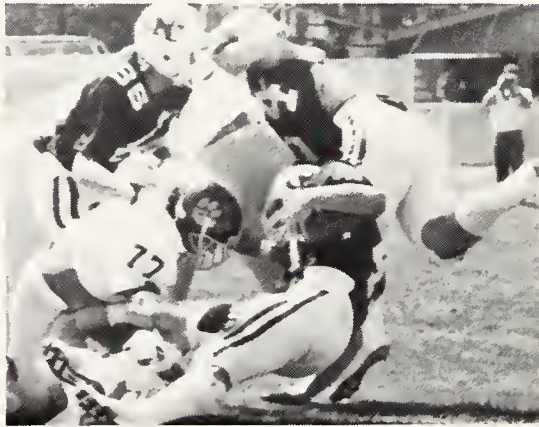

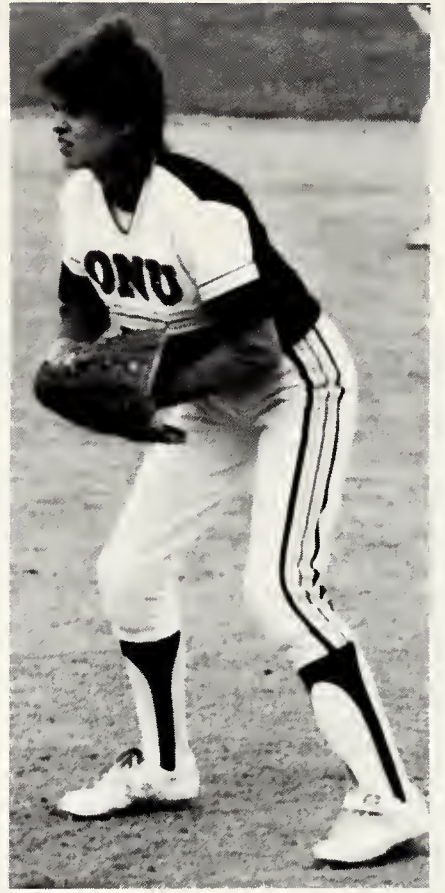

The winter quarter production featured works of author Stephen King in "Tales of Terror and Imagination," as adapted by director Elizabeth Roberts. The production consisted of three short stories that dealt with the mysterious and sometimes terrifying unknown. The series of works weaved tales of a devilish lawnmower gone astray, a man who's violently lovesick and a town that was terrorized by a butchering werewolf.

Opp. page: Teddy (Doug Tilden) threatens Clarisse (Kara Maxon) with her most prized possession, her violin. The set of "When You Comin Back, Red Rider?" complete with working stove.

Reading between the lines of a play, much work and many hours are put in both before and after the actual stage production. Here, the cast and crew of "Tales of Terror and Imagination" gives new meaning to the saying, "What goes up must come down!" in tearing down the set, which in the theatre is known as "strike."

With a look of disgust, Richard (Steve Bopple) is not yet aware that he's going to be shot. This page: Restaurant owner Clark (Bruce Manners) gives a dejected Stephen "Red" Ryder (Keith Searcy) a bossy lecture as Angel (Sue Reed) looks on. Teddy takes advantage of the crippled condition of Lyle (Mike Smith) to poke fun and jeer at him. Solemnly reading their "Tales of Terror" are Dave Wiemer and Mike Roediger. Uttering an evil, guttural chuckle is Lisa Gibson.
